

Leicester July 20. 1844.

My dear Sir,

I have been desirous to have some notice of the 1st August taken in our town this year; but we have delayed doing anything about it so long, that I fear it will fall through. I have been thinking that your vacation would begin about that time. Could you not come up & give us an address? It would be a great thing for us, if you could.

Your expenses at least should be defrayed.

If you cannot come then, will you not come & see us some time this summer? I have never had a conference with you on the final action of our brethren on the English letter, nor on the action of the A. U. S. As to this latter, the more I think of it, the less reason for satisfaction do I find. So I have felt for nearly 6 weeks, & increasingly. I am astonished how I could have voted (as I did) for that 1st Resolution of Mr Phillips's, in which ~~he~~ it is said that we do not think, under ordinary circumstances, that Slavery is any concern of ours. I never noticed that expression (though I endeavored to give a close attention to the Res^{ns}.)

till after the whole matter was published.

Again, to make that poor Savannah Society the Scapegoat for all the Sins of Unitarians, South & North, in connexion with Slavery is pitiful,
as it seems to me - is not manly. Why should we not say out what we think? Why be trammelled by such men as Mr. Garnett?
~~Oh~~ Nevertheless, on some features of that A. N. A. meeting, I do look back with pleasure. It was beautiful to see how the power of certain men, F. Parkman, Garnett, &c. &c. was broken; it was encouraging to witness how ^{promptly} every movement of the Pro Slavery folks was put down; there was an excitement, at the end, in those prompt and unhesitating votes which I think must somewhat resemble that felt by soldiers in the quick, sharp reports of their musketry in a close engagement — only we had the better weapons!!

I think Mr. Chapman took an admirable notice of the A. U. A. action on Slavery — in last week's Standard. I am very glad she set down Gannett & Dewey in their right place, as leaders of the ^{Utopianism-wise} Pro-Slavery host. It is true it was done, plainly & emphatically, in my opinion. Whatever they mean to be, such, in fact, are they.

With love to Cousin Lucretia, and to all my second Cousins —

Believe Me, Affectionately Yours

S. May Jr.

We are all as well as usual. Matters & things pretty comfortable in our Society. ~~go~~ Capt. Southgate has been very sick — is still feeble, but about.
